

Reading lists: The unsung heroes of academia

Gillian Siddall and Hannah Woods
Academic Librarians

Photo credit: University of Northampton

UN
N

Session overview

- Introductions and scene setting
- Discussion activities:
 - Purpose
 - Ownership
 - Use
- Concluding thoughts and comments

Setting the scene

- Our interest in reading lists
- Reading lists at UON
- Reading lists as a learning tool

What is the purpose of a reading list?

What is the purpose of a reading list?

Activity 1 – Your perspective

- Go to www.menti.com
- Please enter the code on the screen

You can open menti.com in a separate tab or on your mobile phone.

What is the purpose of a reading list?

Activity 1 – Your perspective

- Go to www.menti.com
- Please enter the code on the screen

You can open menti.com in a separate tab or on your mobile phone.

Activity 2 – Exploring other perspectives

- Go to the Padlet (link in chat), choose a column and add your thoughts

Who owns the reading list?

Who owns the reading list?

Scenario

A student comes to the help desk and needs help finding a book that is on their reading list but isn't in library stock. A newer edition is in the library.

Who owns the reading list?

Scenario

A student comes to the help desk and needs help finding a book that is on their reading list but isn't in library stock. A newer edition is in the library.

Who should update the reading list?

Who owns the reading list?

Scenario

A student comes to the help desk and needs help finding a book that is on their reading list but isn't in library stock. A newer edition is in the library.

Who should update the reading list?

Should it be updated?

Who owns the reading list?

Scenario

A student comes to the help desk and needs help finding a book that is on their reading list but isn't in library stock. A newer edition is in the library.

Who should be notified?

Who should update the reading list?

Should it be updated?

How do we use a reading list?

How do we use a reading list?

Example reading list:

EYS2113 Creative and Therapeutic Approaches in Children's Services

- Take a look at the example reading list (link in chat)
- Use the Padlet (link in chat) to share your thoughts about how the following groups might use the list

How do we use a reading list?

Example reading list:

EYS2113 Creative and Therapeutic Approaches in Children's Services

- Take a look at the example reading list (link in chat)
- Use the Padlet (link in chat) to share your thoughts about how the following groups might use the list

Students

How do we use a reading list?

Example reading list:

EYS2113 Creative and Therapeutic Approaches in Children's Services

- Take a look at the example reading list (link in chat)
- Use the Padlet (link in chat) to share your thoughts about how the following groups might use the list

Students

Academics

How do we use a reading list?

Example reading list:

EYS2113 Creative and Therapeutic Approaches in Children's Services

- Take a look at the example reading list (link in chat)
- Use the Padlet (link in chat) to share your thoughts about how the following groups might use the list

Students

Academics

LLS

Summary

- Purpose
- Ownership
- Use

Any questions?

References

Cameron, C. and Siddall, G. (2017) Opening lines of communication: book ordering and reading lists, the academics view. New Review of Academic Librarianship. 23(1), pp. 42-59. 1361-4533.

Siddall, G. (2016) University academics' perceptions of reading list labels. New Library World. 117(7/8) 0307-4803. <http://dx.doi.org/10.1108/NLW-02-2016-0012>

Cameron, C. and Siddall, G. (2015) Academic staff perceptions and use of reading lists for book ordering. SCONUL Focus. 64, pp.41 – 44.

Siddall, G. and Rose, H. (2014) Reading lists – time for a reality check? An investigation into the use of reading lists as a pedagogical tool to support the development of information skills amongst Foundation Degree students. Library and Information Research Journal. 38(118), pp.52-73.

Siddall, G. and Rose, H. (2011) won the Library Information Research Group Research Award to fund the research: “An investigation into the use of reading lists as a pedagogical tool to support the development of information skills amongst Foundation Degree students”.